

Enrollment for Semester Breaks Old Records

HERE WE ARE—The highest number of students to enroll in Valley's history, approximately 15,500, registered for both day and evening classes. There are 8,200 students registered in day school and 7,300 enrolled in the evening. The large number of students is due to refused admission to universities and some state colleges. Evening Division status quo is attributed to the slacking off of industry in the San Fernando Valley.

Pupil Population Explosion Poses Campus Problems

Enrollment hit its highest in Valley's history this year with approximately 15,500 students registered for both day and evening classes. "There are about 8,200 day students," stated Dr. John Reiter, dean of admissions and guidance. He also reported an enrollment of approximately 7,300 evening division students, about the same as last year. The increase of almost 1,000 over last September's day enrollment, according to Dr. Reiter, is due to students who were refused admission to universities and state colleges because of the inability of these institutions to hire enough instructors. This problem exists at San Fernando Valley State and Cal State in Los Angeles.

Dean of Evening Division Donald Click said the reason the evening division has not enlarged in the past year is a lack of increase in industrial activity in the San Fernando Valley. There are many technological classes that were not filled this semester while there was a gain in enrollment in the liberal arts and humanities courses.

The population is causing three major problems, according to William Lewis, dean of students. Parking is the most serious problem. There are approximately 3,900 parking spaces on campus and about 7,000 students trying to park cars within the school lots.

Classes have increased in size, making it necessary to hire all the instructors possible and classes are meeting in every available room.

"Facilities on campus such as the snack bar and cafeteria are exceeding the fire department limits each day. There is also a great need for rooms large enough for groups to meet and study. The library addition to be built this January will double the seating capacity and will be welcomed because of the population increase," stated Dean Lewis.

"It is impossible to get all of the students together at an all-college program," said Dean Lewis, "but there is an attempt being made to decentralize activities." Department programs will provide the most relief in this situation. They will be planned to suit the interests of students majoring in that field. These programs include campus concerts, math seminars, physics seminars, occupational exploration, art exhibits, athletics and departmental cultural programs.

Many students have had to enroll in classes during both the day and evening divisions to get the necessary courses. Registration closed Wednesday, Sept. 8, with almost all classes in day and evening divisions filled to the maximum limits.

As in past semesters, there will be two men students to each woman at Valley this year. The average age of day students is 18.2 and night students average 27 years of age.

INFORMATION

New students can obtain information concerning the campus at any of the information booths located conveniently around campus. Information can also be obtained through Monarch, the student handbook. Evening students will find information available in Diadem, the evening division handbook.

New Staff Members Fill 44 Teaching Posts

When campus bells signaled the beginning of Valley College's fall semester Monday, 44 new teachers were in the classroom awaiting some 1,200 additional students to the college.

The faculty increase broke the old record of 24 new faces set in the fall of 1964 and brought the instructional staff up to 237.

Of the 44, 30 teachers are permanent "residents," and 14 are substituting for faculty members now on leave.

Joining the staff are 13 probationary teachers, 13 conditional probationary teachers, three interns, one assistant professor and the 15 substitutes.

English took most of the new staff, seven: one conditional probationary, three substitutes and one intern.

They are Fletcher Flynn, who taught English at James A. Garfield High School, East Los Angeles College and Los Angeles City College; Miss Kathryn L. Rupert, who has served in a supervisory position in Passenger Sales and Service with American Airlines in New York, Buffalo and Washington, from 1946 to 1964; Mrs. Mary Spangler, who earned her masters degree in English at UCLA in 1965; and Morton A. Tenenbaum, a transfer from Pierce College where he has taught English since 1936.

Also new to the English department are Miss Judy Seder, Mrs. Sandra Hanson, and Mrs. Clara Varnum, all substitutes.

The Behavioral Science Department followed a close second with six new faces in its anthropology, psychology and sociology sections.

With the coming of Mrs. Pat T. Blakeslee (coming with a bachelors and masters degrees from San Fernando Valley State College, she has taught psychology for one year at Pasadena City College), Dr. Barbara C. Pottharst (with eight years teaching experience in the Valley College Evening Division) and Louis Schreiber (a candidate for his Ph.D. degree in psychology, who also holds a masters degree in business administration), the psychology teachers at Valley now number 10.

Substitute Burton Siskin joined the anthropology staff after earning his masters degree from UCLA in 1965.

Mrs. Patricia K. Allen joined the sociology staff after a year of teaching at Bancroft Junior High School. Samuel Gilbert and Mrs. Gloria Sanders, both part-time teachers this semester, joined the psychology staff early Tuesday morning.

With the addition of five new staff members, the history department is now one of the largest on campus with 20 instructors.

Added to the history staff are Mrs. Margot S. Moomaw (comes to her first West Coast teaching assignment from two years of teaching in eastern high schools, holds an M.A. degree from Harvard); Solomon Modell, who taught history at Grant High School for five years; and substitute Joseph C. DeJohnette.

He must also be presently registered in 10 units at Valley College and have a minimum average of 2.0 at the time of midterm and final grades during both semesters of his candidacy and incumbency. The only other qualification necessary is a mature person who is willing to take the responsibilities of his job.

DR. LAWRENCE SNIPPER

Dr. Snipper Appointed Asst. Dean

Valley College named Dr. Lawrence Snipper as acting assistant dean of the evening division for the fall semester.

He will replace Dr. Helena Hilleary, who accepted the position as acting evening division dean at Metropolitan College this semester.

Dr. Snipper held the position of coordinator of records for the evening division at Valley last semester.

He worked as a senior chemist in research for a private industry from 1951-56 before coming to the Valley College chemistry department.

Dr. Snipper earned his A.A. degree from Los Angeles City College, his B.A. from Reed College in Portland, Ore., and his Ph.D. from Oregon State University in Corvallis.

Robert Spare Quad Speaker

The Quadwringlers will begin the new semester with Robert Spare, first vice president of the Los Angeles County Young Republicans, discussing the question, "Withdraw from the U.N.? Yes!" today at 11 a.m. in the Quad.

Next Thursday, Sept. 23, noted television personality and political figure Steve Allen returns to Valley with a defense, "Withdraw from the U.N.? No!"

Throughout the Quadwangler series this semester, special emphasis will be on exercising free speech and expression, according to John Buchanan, assistant professor of speech.

"Are we becoming compulsory about marriage?" one of last spring's Quadwangler panel discussions, will be broadcast over KPFF (FM), a non-profit educational radio station, tomorrow evening at 8 p.m. and again at 11:45 a.m. Monday, Sept. 20.

Parking Problem Increases

Student parking facilities are lacking approximately 1,000 stalls, according to William Lewis, dean of students.

Foreseen parking problems necessitated a mid-summer meeting of the Executive Council. Improvement of campus property, on the corner of Fulton and Burbank Blvd., for 38 student parking stalls was approved by the council.

Funds totaling $8,000 were appropriated by the council for the project and were approved by President William J. McNells.

Dean Lewis also stated that moves have been made towards leasing property located behind Grant High School from the flood control district for additional parking.

Parking isn't the only problem. Traffic jams are also a familiar sight. "The big solution to these problems," Dean Lewis said, "is to have public transportation to the college."

He revealed that several years ago he appeared before the Metropolitan Transit Authority, now the Southern California Rapid Transit System, asking to be given public transportation to the college.

"They said then they could not afford to provide such a service and until there is such a service provided, I do not think there will be any relief in the parking space and traffic in the future," Dean Lewis also said.

Campus traffic and parking regulations were read by instructors to their classes the first few days of class meetings. The regulations state: no parking in front of private homes; obtaining and using parking stickers; and keeping aisles free to through traffic.

An explanation of restricted areas, a reminder of the speed limits and precaution against theft from automobiles was also in the bulletin.

Violators of any of the regulations will be subject to suspension or having their cars impounded.

College Representatives Visit Summer Workshop

Amid the grandeur of soaring mountain tops and clear mountain air, Valley's Executive Council, AMS Council, AWS Council, yell leaders, song leaders, band representatives and IOC spent Sept. 3 through the 5 at the Student Government Summer Workshop held at Clear Creek.

Clear Creek is a forest camp owned and operated by the Los Angeles Board of Education in the Angeles National Forest.

Thirty-seven members representing different council seats, clubs and organizations attended the first of what many hope will become a series of workshops in the future.

Mike Clark, A.S. president, stated, "The reasons for conducting workshops of this nature are varied, but the objective for which we are striving remains the same, the opportunity to promote better understanding among student body leaders as to the varied responsibilities they maintain to their offices and to the college."

Advisers for the weekend workshop were William E. Lewis, dean of students; Samuel Alexander, assistant dean of students; Miss Ruby Zuver, coordinator of student activities; and Conley Gibson, bursar.

Dean Lewis in his opening address discussed "New Problems Facing Students" and began the workshop with an energetic note as he fought off gnats and flies while presenting his oration.

"At Valley we give you, the leaders more freedom than do most colleges facing the same problems as we. We feel it is important for you the students to learn to govern properly and effectively," stated Dean Lewis.

The workshops covering such areas as building student government, orientation to the college, social activities and all college programs, as well as selections were interrupted intermittently for eating and recreational activities.

Swimming, volleyball, basketball and hiking, under a warm Southern California sun gave the student leaders and advisers a chance to become better acquainted.

In summing up the responsibilities of all those gathered at the conference, president Clark stated, "The Executive Council meets with the hopes of obtaining a harmonious program with the clubs and campus organizations. The success of this program depends on the representation of the Associated Students in campus life.

"Student government does not necessarily mean that we as an organization are here just to administer what we feel important but rather what will be beneficial to the needs of our campus as a whole. Student government is, therefore, not just the council or the IOC, but rather everyone on campus. If individuals remain silent and do not voice their views, then they are not taking an active role in college life," he concluded.

Death Takes 'Great White Doctor'

The African hospital compound is empty, not deserted nor forgotten nor entirely void of inhabitants, yet in spirit it is empty because the "Great White Doctor" is gone.

Dr. Albert Schweitzer, one of the world's truly great humanitarians, has died, leaving behind half a century's dedication and accomplishment to the African people and the peoples of the world.

Philosopher, musician, theologian and physician, Dr. Schweitzer, at the age of 90, fulfilled a life of dedication to the spiritually and physically sick in the jungles of equatorial Africa.

"Reverence for life" was his stated philosophy, and his way of life. Forsaking personal glory and continental riches as the world's foremost authority on organ architecture, outstanding Bach scholar and interpreter of Bach's organ music, Dr. Schweitzer elected to dedicate his life to humanity.

"It is not renouncing anything," the doctor once said, "when you are doing some good."

Two generations have passed since the doctor and his wife established the jungle medical facilities, and in that time his voice has resounded throughout the world, time after time, calling for universal understanding and love.

"I want, before I die, to see all atomic weapons banned, no matter who makes them or what name they give them. This is the only possible hope for mankind if we are to avoid self-destruction," Dr. Schweitzer once stated.

Perhaps in time, atomic weapons and their need will cease; and, if and when that time does occur, Dr. Schweitzer will be remembered for another facet of his work to save mankind.

To build a monument, construct a shrine, or provide a lavish tomb for the great humanitarian and Nobel prize winner, who was buried in a plain wooden coffin last week, would be insignificant in comparison to the living memorial, a hospital consisting of some 50 buildings and thousands of human lives saved by the man himself.

Is Your Auto a Vehicle of Death?

Automobiles are not just vehicles of transportation; if not used with common sense they can become instruments of death.

Automobile deaths on U.S. highways are approaching 50,000 per year. The detection and correction of defective vehicles could reduce this waste of life.

Innocent people are killed due to the negligence of others. It takes more than just filling the gas tank once a week to keep a car in proper working condition.

Compulsory auto inspection on a periodic maintenance check basis is being discussed across the nation. More than half of the states have an auto inspection program, while 22 states do not.

Statistics from various state programs reveal that faulty lighting constitutes more than half of the malfunctions found in inspections. Bad brakes are the second largest fault. Poor steering alignment and operation cause about one-tenth of inspection rejections.

Periodic maintenance tests have been discussed for almost 40 years. States have tried inspection methods. Some inspection laws have been repealed after failure; other states have modified their programs.

Inspection stations should be set up so that vehicle owners receive proper maintenance checks and are not faced with unnecessary repair bills to benefit a garage. In contrast, if service stations were maintenance inspection stations, the owners might give an inspection sticker to a good customer because he doesn't want to lose the customer's patronage.

Observance of traffic regulations by drivers could also aid in keeping the traffic accident and death toll down. Reckless drivers should be subject to more meaningful penalties.

Motorists illegally pass other vehicles, go through stop signs and lights, and speed when they think there is no immediate danger and can get away with it.

Unfortunately, these people usually don't get traffic tickets and are the ones who cause accidents.

Splattered, Decaled or Designed, New Fashions Emphasize Pop Art

By PAT DeGRAW

Checkered, plaid, posey printed or paisley knee caps are in this season!

Because stockings sometimes look bulky, some girls dye their legs in their favorite color, then use decals, or if they are art majors, they paint a design. Of course, this wouldn't have worked a few years ago when some colors weren't worn together. But today, if you pick a nice gang green or a bloodshot maroon, you can mix and match almost any color with it.

Pop art has invaded designers' dreams now, sending coeds in droves to look like cans of tomatoes or Spam. Others will give you vertigo with their Op art patterns.

Now, instead of buying a pattern for a dress, it's best to look for old billboards.

If you have curly hair, wouldn't it be better if you just skipped school altogether? Because straight hair, preferably one of 25 shades of blonde, from wax white to grave grey, is the only way to fly. When you walk or dance it must hit your cheeks and collar like dangling spaghetti. If it doesn't then wear a paper bag or something.

BOOTS ARE NOT only chic, but are also useful and practical. Besides being handy for stepping on bugs or massaging your fish partner's feet, they are part of the equipment for squashing school dress regulation councils.

Eyes are still in, only more so. From 10 paces nothing but eyes should show. This will be the Year of the False Eyelashes.

What with the boys wearing high boots, slim pants, and long styled hair, we're going to need the eyelashes, girls, to tell 'em apart!

with book prices, often fall prey. Sue Hall and Bob Young illustrate in the above pictures what can happen. Contrary to popular opinion, students don't save money. Once in a class students find they have bought the wrong edition or the

Self-Tutoring Lab Open to Aid Students

Have a problem in understanding class material? Miss an assignment and lose contact with lecture content? Need extra help? In Valley's Self-Tutoring Laboratory aid is ready and waiting.

Designed to supplement classroom learning the laboratory answers the need of students desiring additional assistance in almost all subject areas from Spanish to calculus.

Located in B57 and beginning Sept. 30, it will be open from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday and from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, the laboratory is ready to accommodate interested and frustrated students.

Attendance Voluntary

Attendance at the lab for those interested in pursuing knowledge is voluntary and no grades or credit is given. "Everyone is welcome," Allan Keller, Study Skills Center coordinator, stated.

Automated learning may sound far fetched but in B57 it's reality. Craig readers and multiple choice machines are only two of many mechanized devices which enable students to gain insight in areas of interest and bewilderment.

Study Guide

Providing that "extra" little bit which helps a student to receive better grades, understand course content and answer the why's so often entertained by students regarding varied material, the center is an asset to the campus, as can be seen by all those who take advantage of it.

Another aspect of the lab is that it can accommodate all students seeking or interested in auditing classes to supplement learning (a practice not permitted in city colleges), by giving them the opportunity to do much the same through teaching machines.

Auditing Prohibited

Because there is a state law in California and also since there is an Educational Code prohibiting auditing in two year colleges because city and state financing is based on average attendance, this other aspect of the lab is instrumental in providing a working substitute.

Biology, chemistry, English, foreign languages, math, physics, music, psychology, electronics and business are only a few of the many programs which will be waiting for you in B57.

Fall Athenaeum Series Planned

Intellect and art are being offered to the Valley College student and community member on behalf of the Athenaeum series for the fall.

The lecture and concert half of the series will begin its programs on Friday, Sept. 24 with Sam Hinton, folk singing artist, in the College Theater. "Singing Across the Land" will be Hinton's varied panoramic view of the United States, as revealed in its folklore and folk music.

Louis Fischer, noted authority on the Soviet Union and historian, will speak on "The Future of Communism," Sunday, Oct. 10. Noted humorist and commentator Harry Golden will tell "The Story of Civil Rights," Friday evening, Nov. 5.

The museum films will be shown on Monday evenings at 8:30. The first in this series will be "Moon-trap," film of the year, which depicts the entrapment of a white dolphin in French Canada, to be shown Oct. 18.

Nov. 15 will be the date when "Genevieve," a colorful, humorous account of the famed Brighton run, will be viewed. A film depicting the 1912 expedition to the South Pole will be run Jan. 17, 1966. Entitled "Scott's Last Journey," it tells the story of the party in which all of the members were lost.

The cost of the lecture and concert series is largely paid by the student body. In order to make up the remainder of the cost, an admission fee of $1 is collected from non-students or those students without ID cards. All of these programs begin at 8:30 p.m.

The museum film series is free to students and the general public.

Hope for Dropouts

By JEFF HANSEN
Feature Editor

With the fantastic number of school dropouts coming from economically depressed areas of our nation, efforts have been made to remedy the situation.

In hopes of curtailing a local dropout problem in Pacoima, Valley students have started a tutoring program. The program, aimed at giving underprivileged children a positive outlook on life, is centered in the community surrounding the Sharp Street Elementary School.

"Before the program started the children were only interested in leaving school to earn money," said Sherry Reson, a Valley student who's directing the program.

She added, "Children of elementary school age live in their own world... a school, park and home. Because of this small world they feel condemned to D's and F's."

The tutoring program intends to eliminate the "world in itself" feeling. In order to give the children some insight in their education the tutors will use a positive approach. "With this approach tutoring sessions will begin by showing the child what he has already learned. The tutor can build from there," said Reson.

Presents New Outlook

Teachers in Sharp Street School have a special problem—the children in the community come from an area where the racial ratio is 1/3 Negro, 1/3 white and 1/3 Mexican. Families in the area have an average of eight children and a yearly income of less than $4,000.

"Much of the time," Miss Reason said, "the parents both work or they are ill. This gives the child the impression that the situation is the same everywhere."

As an answer to the problem she feels that by establishing a "one to one" relationship the children will realize that a college education is not very remote.

Although the number of student tutors needed is high, Miss Reson is convinced that "we must start now."

Friday, Sept. 24, will see plans for the fall program take shape when interested students meet in the auditorium at the Sharp Street School for a conference with the Principal Burt Vance.

Students interested in the program can read additional information compiled in a booklet called "Tutoring Tips." Copies can be read in the office area of Farrel Broslawsky and Thomas Vacavone. Details regarding the meeting can be obtained from Sherry Reson at Dialogue Book Shop, 1 to 4 Thursday and Friday.

Clubs Begin Fall Planning

By RACHEL ARNO
Club Editor

Hello, Valley. Well, hello, Valley! It's so nice to see you back where you belong. And although the subject has been changed to protect the innocent, the incessant melody seems to linger, fitting right into the scheme of the new school year here at Valley.

This semester, as in the past, Valley will be hosting such events as Homecoming and Club Day. Homecoming, with its traditional dance, will be Oct. 29, and Club Day will be Sept. 30 in Monarch Square. Such activities, along with numerous others, help to make the school year more enjoyable.

Last semester there were 41 recognized clubs on campus, and already the seeds for a new club have been planted. The Great Books Discussion Program will be started this semester patterned after the University of Chicago's Great Books of the Western World Discussion Groups. The purpose of the program will be to read and informally discuss a few selected texts by the great thinkers of the western world, ranging from Plato to Proust. Meetings will be held every Tuesday at 11 a.m. in FL 106, starting Sept. 21. For more information contact Jay Merson, president. With some cultivation from some bright students this should be a great club and well worth the time.

TAU ALPHA EPSILON-LES SAVANTS, the all-college honorary scholarship societies, extend an invitation to all students interested in membership in TAE-LS to attend an open house on Friday, Sept. 24, from 7 p.m. to midnight. This informal event will be held at the home of the club's president Doris Dyer, at 8307 Densmore in Sepulveda.

For any irate or disillusioned students who may wish to relieve themselves of their frustrations, the RIFLE AND PISTOL CLUB may be the answer to all your problems. The club will meet every Thursday at 11 a.m. in MS 109. Everyone is welcomed by the David Krajieski, club president.

If, on the other hand, you are more interested in the creative fields, the VALLEY COLLEGIATE PLAYERS chapter of the honorary national dramatic fraternity, welcomes all new and returning students to Valley. All are invited to attend theater arts department's many varied and entertaining productions throughout the year, which are free to you with the presentation of your Student Body Card.

Also for those who are artistically orientated, Claire Shatz, president of the ART CLUB, welcomes all those who wish to join. Their first meeting will be Tuesday, Sept. 21, at 11. Some of its activities will include sketching trips, gallery tours and lectures.

Skyrockets, anyone? No, let's keep this news quiet. Blintzes anyone? Yes? Well the opening activities for LAVC's HILLEL will be a Blintze Brunch on Tues., Sept. 21, at 11 a.m.

As part of the membership program this will give prospective members an opportunity to become acquainted with the Hillel program, its officers and members, and most important, help each student find a place within the organization. For the first time in its three year history the Hillel Council at Valley has the opportunity to have a lounge of its own. This unit, which is unique because it is sponsored by B'nai B'rith and the Valley Cities Jewish Community Centre, has spent the summer trying to locate appropriate furniture for the lounge. Intercollegiate religious services for the High Holy Days will be conducted through the courtesy of the Los Angeles Hillel Council. Tickets are available free with membership now being taken.

Do you like politics? Do you like to express your views? Then back the party of your choice. All VC students are invited to attend the meetings of the YOUNG REPUBLICANS Tuesday at 11 a.m. in E102. As a YR, you will be able to attend conventions, campaign more efficiently for candidates, and take an active role in the formulation of Republican policy.

One of the more important features of Valley is its QUADWRANGLER speakers. The first speaker of the new semester will be Robert Spear, first vice president of the Los Angeles County Young Republicans, who will speak in the old quad today at 11 a.m. on the topic, "Withdrawal from the United Nations—YES."

The CAMPUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP invites everyone to attend its meetings. The first meeting will be Tuesday, Sept. 21, at 11 a.m. in P104. Everyone is welcome. Officers will be introduced and plans for the coming semester revealed.

Tension Mounts for Monarch Footballers

By NEIL BRODY
Sports Editor

"Watch out for Valley," may very well be the story of the 1965 Metropolitan Football Conference. Boasting 65 men, head coach George Goff seems to feel "The outlook is very encouraging." The Los Angeles Times rated the Monarch gridgers as the "1965 longshot pick." Personally I feel these are slight understatements.

The mighty Lion Squad has a very sufficient balance of strong offense and defense with an abundance of spirit and keen sense of competition.

With over 40 former high school or service all-league players on the squad, Valley's footballers find themselves in the position where they must do capacity work in order to remain on the star-studded team. You'll find a minimum of kinetic energy here with many of the positions still open and uncommitted.

A big question has been raised as to who will start at the quarterback slot in Friday night's practice game with San Bernardino. Of the four candidates, Ed Mitchell, who earlier had some trouble handling the ball but lately has shown much promise and polish, will probably start.

Terrel Ray, Valley's fleet-footed end, is back this year in hopes to break more Metro records and lead his team to a championship berth. He's the man who can do it too! According to coach Goff, "Ray is a potential all-American."

Also returning is Lion center Mike Haben. After turning in one of the finest performances in the conference last season, Haben is ready to compete once more. You can expect a great effort from this Lion gridder.

Goff expressed great hope in winning Friday's practice game with San Bernardino. Although San Berdo is still a young team, they can be expected to give the Monarchs a good fight.

Rival Pierce College, the third team in a series of three practice games, will host Valley Oct. 1 at Valley's stadium following a practice game here with San Francisco Sept. 25. Pierce has a polished first string with a lot of experience but unfortunately, or should I say unfortunately have limited personnel with only one strong team.

The Monarchs won't have that problem this season. In the event of injury, the Lions have stocked a strong reserve team. Competition in the ranks plays an important part in winning. Nevertheless they are hoping to avoid any injuries for obvious reasons.

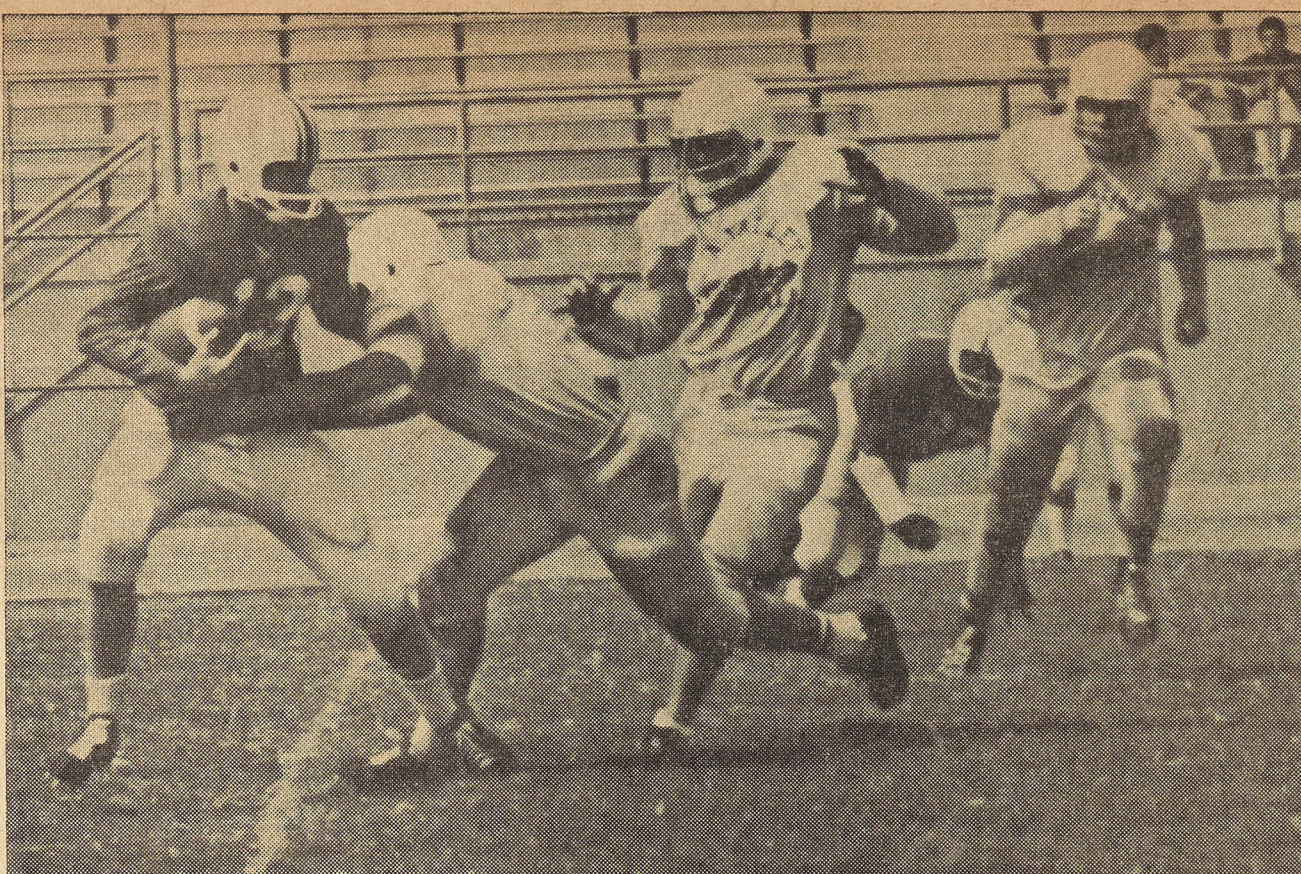

If you're looking for a weaker Metro league this season you won't find it. Long Beach, even after losing coach Jim Stangeland and a few key players, is still the team to beat with Bakersfield and Cerritos also powerful contenders for the conference title.

This may be a championship season for the Monarchs, but it won't be done easily. Valley has the makings of a number one team with explosive speed, great ambition, a wide range of talent and a more than ample reserve power. Remember, however, they are playing in what may very well be the toughest conference in the nation. The coming season should prove to be most interesting.

New Monarch Football Coaches Hoping for Successful Season

Five coaches, plus 65 men, are getting ready to open the football season at San Bernardino. "The desire to work hard and play winning ball," according to Ralph Caldwell, director of athletics at Valley, is the spirit of the football team this year.

George Goff, who last year was the assistant coach, will be at the helm. Last year's record of four wins and five losses was misleading, because 17 school records were either tied or broken. While at Birmingham, Goff's teams won three league championships and a city title.

The offensive backfield coach is Nick Giovinnazzo. His first year at Valley was devoted to the defense. During the years of 1952-1963, Giovinnazzo coached at least one high school league championship team.

Lynn Lomen, a newcomer to college coaching, and Duane Putnam, a former lineman for the Los Angeles Rams, will be the line coaches. Lo-men was the line coach at Birmingham High School when Goff was coaching his championship football teams. Putnam, a lineman for the Rams, was picked for all-pro team a number of times.

Howard Taft, who has winning ways as do all these coaches, will round out the coaching staff by taking over the backfield coaching position with Giovinnazzo. He was head coach at Monroe when the team won two East Valley League championships. The backfield coach was asked about his feelings on coming from a team with a winning season to a team which has had losing seasons. "I don't look at it that way. We're going to win!"

Mike Bernas, Eric Johnson, Harold Lurtsema, Phil Munday will return as backs.

At tackle, Goff has two seasoned veterans from last year. They are Marc Zacuto, 5 feet 9 inches and 215 pounds, and Phil Smith, 6 feet and 1 inch and weighs 200 pounds.

The only returning guard is Jim Bradley, 5 feet 10 inches, 180 pounds. Jim Stewart and Geoff Duncan are the two ends who are returning.

Terrel Ray, another returning letterman, will be the flankerback. Ray made the 1964 all-Metropolitan Conference team by catching nine touchdown passes.

Other returning lettermen are David Downing, Martin Garrison, Dave Rock, and Wes Sylva.

Gridmen Toughen, Demolish LACC

Monarch gridmen displayed their readiness for the coming season by scoring a 12-0 victory in a controlled scrimmage against the Los Angeles City College Cubs, Saturday.

First to score for the Monarchs was flankerback Terrel Ray on a 58 yard pass from quarterback Ed Mitchell.

The next tally for the Monarchs came when safetyman Wilber Wright snatched a Cub aerial and scampered 45 yards down the sideline for the second touchdown.

The Valley defensive linemen picked up a number of LACC fumbles caused by hard tackling. The defensive units gave Mitchell, letterman Dave Rock, Mike Rhodes, new from Reseda, and Rosey Raines good protection although they suffered from dropped passes and poor ball handling. Bernie Carr from Birmingham did not get into action due to muscle trouble in his throwing arm.

Mitchell, working with the first unit, showed promise of good things to come as he consistently found holes for his backs provided by the Monarch line.

Flankerback Ray led the receivers while displaying the form which made him Valley's leading receiver last year. For Valley's first score, Ray flanked out to the right end, turned at the snap of the ball, grabbed Mitchell's pass and out ran the defense for the score.

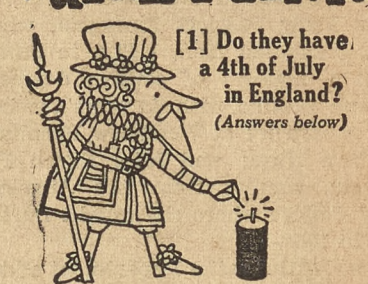

The two hour session gave head George Goff his first look at the 80 gridders vying for spots on the team.

Valley's first pre-conference game will be against San Bernardino Friday night at San Bernardino.

Cross Country Prelim Friday; Water Polo Opening Slated

Prelim practices for water polo and cross country will start off the new season beginning Sept. 24 for water polo, stated coach Mike Wiley.

George Ker, cross country coach, announced a practice meet for the harriers at Glendale tomorrow at 3:30 p.m.

Despite the fact that Valley high schools have no water polo teams, newly appointed water polo mento Wiley is looking forward to a good year.

"I have good swimmers," he declared, "but I have no idea how good the water polo team is going to be."

With five returning lettermen back and 21 new freshmen, the team goes up against Glendale, Sept. 24 at 3:30 p.m. in the Birmingham High School pool.

Bob Friedlander, captain of the team, last year was chosen as the most outstanding water polo player by the Lettermen's Club along with all-Metropolitan Conference recognition.

Moving into cross country, a large number of runners have signed, according to newly appointed coach Ker, and "Jim Arnold, Tony Borio, and possibly John Thelen are among the team's good returning men."

"Among the top high school harrier joining Valley's squad are Fred Ramps, from Sylmar; Lloyd Hughes, from Dorsey; Fred Ortega and Joe Santa Cruz, from Burbank," he said.
